choosing whites

The Haymes Natural Series features ten beautiful colours derived from nature. In addition we offer seven progressions of those colours from lighter to darker shades. To create a stunning look simply choose a colour for your walls and then use one of the lighter shades for your ceiling and trims.

The key to a perfect warm white is to ensure the undertone of yellow doesn't become too pronounced overall. The emerging trends still lean towards warmer neutrals that are a mix of yellow, brown and black. These warmer tones range from a beautiful warm grey, taupe or buff toned neutral, to natural looking whites with a warm tone still coming through.

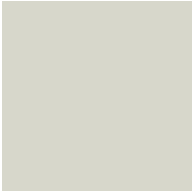

Cool whites work best in very simple modern homes that have one white as the focus and all other materials should be chosen around the wall colour to achieve a contemporary look, also lots of natural light helps to enhance the freshness and brightness of cooler whites.

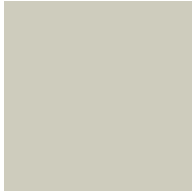

A white without any undertone is very hard to find. So when it comes to picking the perfect white you need to consider what is going to appear the most white in your surroundings. A white with minimal colour added to it is going to be the most successful choice.
